Together
we give.

May 5, 2020

We have all heard "we are in this together" over and over again. It doesn't feel like it sometimes since we can't be together, but one thing we can do is give together! HomeAid Atlanta is participating in Giving Tuesday Now on May 5 so that we can build for the future.

As you know, the economic toll of this pandemic is almost as bad as the health crisis. While the economy strives to recover in the coming months, we anticipate a much greater need, as many will be affected by job loss. According to a survey, 1 in 4 people could not pay for a $400 unexpected expense.* Those hit the hardest economically so far are those in the service industry who are often among the most precariously housed. Missing one paycheck could result in a domino effect causing them to find themselves and their families without a roof over their heads.

HomeAid Atlanta was founded almost 20 years ago by the home building industry to combat those statistics. Home is a part of everything we do. Home is more important than ever, and we need you now so that we can meet the challenge to ensure that all of our neighbors have a safe, dignified place to call home. In 2019 we added a record 113 beds at metro Atlanta shelters, and despite the pandemic we will add 26 beds in the first part of 2020 thanks to BA Barrett Construction leading our project at Making a Way Housing, and Knight Homes leading our Second Chance Home project for House of Dawn. Giving Tuesday Now is the chance for everyone to help us begin already approved projects, as well as meet the urgent needs expressed by our shelter provider partners on the front lines.

We so appreciate you providing the foundation that we stand on today! Help us build for tomorrow by donating and sharing our page with others!
