HOMEAID BUILDS AT CLIFTON SANCTUARY MINISTRIES Major renovations on the way for this Atlanta men's shelter

ATLANTA – March 23, 2016 – HomeAid Atlanta's board of directors approved a renovation project at Clifton Sanctuary Ministries, expected to be complete in mid-2017. Located in Atlanta, Clifton Sanctuary Ministries (CSM) serves homeless men by providing emergency shelter, transitional housing, and programs including case management, support groups, and counseling. Work on the shelter will include total renovations to both CSM's emergency shelter and transitional facilities.

After unanimous approval of this worthy project, HomeAid board president Kevin Aycock of Kevin Aycock Homes, board member Shane Roach of Village Square Homes, and Doug Ogden of Mulhern & Kulp Structural Engineers, went to CSM to take a look at the state of the buildings and meet some of the men that are currently in their transitional housing.

"We are thrilled to have HomeAid helping us with this project," said CSM Board Member Gordon Slade. "We had an estimate from a contractor, but honestly having the backing of such a strong organization will help us with funding as well as construction on this much needed project."

As with other HomeAid build projects, HomeAid aims to help the service provider significantly save on construction costs through donations from building industry professionals. HomeAid is excited to partner with a worthy organization such as CSM. CSM began in 1979 as an outreach program of Clifton Presbyterian Church and has been providing shelter and services to homeless Atlanta men ever since. The project will fully renovate the commercial kitchen in the main building and three kitchens in the apartment building; level and replace flooring throughout the building; insulate and replace windows in both buildings; and external repairs and painting throughout.

In addition to the renovation project at CSM, HomeAid is in the final phases of construction on a new eight-unit apartment building at Phoenix Pass in Conyers, as well as a total renovation of a home for formerly incarcerated homeless veterans at Jesus Set the Captive Free in southwest Atlanta.

HomeAid Atlanta, founded in 2001, is a nonprofit organization that builds new lives for homeless families and individuals through housing and community outreach. HomeAid works in partnership with the Greater Atlanta Home Builders Association, as well as community building industry organizations, to assist the temporarily homeless. To date, HomeAid Atlanta has completed 53 housing, remodel and care day projects at locations that serve victims of domestic violence, teen mothers, abused and abandoned children, and more.
